The Wart lay awake, waiting to be turned into an owl... "This," he thought to himself, "is where I break my neck...."

The Wart, foster son of Sir Ector, plays all day until Merlyn the magician becomes his tutor. Then he learns about the important things in life; what it's like to be a bird, or a fish or a badger. Then the King dies without an heir, and it is said that whoever can pull the magic sword out of the stone will be king of all England. But the last person any one thinks of is the Wart....

A classic fantasy about the young King Arthur.
